Blog Post by Company CEO Scott Dorsey

Earlier this week, salesforce.com Chairman and CEO Marc Benioff and I announced that we have entered into a definitive agreement under which salesforce.com will acquire ExactTarget. The response to the announcement has been tremendous, and it's been great seeing so many share our excitement for how ExactTarget and salesforce.com will increase the value proposition for customers of both companies and deliver the marketing platform of choice for CMOs.

Since the announcement, I have received a tremendous amount of positive feedback from our clients and partners, and I wanted to follow up and address a few of the most frequently asked questions.

Will ExactTarget continue to support integrations with CRM systems other than Salesforce?

Yes, ExactTarget will continue to support integrations with CRM providers such as Microsoft Dynamics, Netsuite, SAP and SugarCRM. Since our founding, our commitment to providing industry-leading integrations with CRM and marketing technologies such as Adobe and Google has empowered marketers to create relevant and effective digital marketing. Our focus on providing CMOs a powerful digital marketing platform to integrate and aggregate data remains unchanged.

How will the cultures of the two companies combine?

Salesforce.com shares our passion for marketing, and their customer company vision aligns with our commitment to helping clients create closer relationships with their customers. While the two companies clearly have their own unique style, we are both driven by a shared commitment to our teams, our clients and have a laser focus on delivering the next generation of technology via the cloud. I am confident that together ExactTarget and salesforce.com will increase the value for customers of both companies and deliver innovations and world-class customer service with the same warmth and passion that have made us who we are today. Salesforce.com is an incredible company with world renowned technology and teams. Fortune named salesforce.com its Most Admired Company in Computer Software earlier this year, and the publication named salesforce.com #19 on its Best Places to Work list. Further, Forbes named salesforce.com its Most Innovative Company in 2012 and 2011.

Is this good for ExactTarget's B2C customers?

Together salesforce.com and ExactTarget bring tremendous expertise in B2B and B2C technology. Salesforce powers many of today's top consumer brands, including Activision, Burberry, CareerBuilder, Chipotle, and Financial Times, just to name a few. Look no further than their website to see the transformative work underway on the Salesforce platform. We believe ExactTarget's expertise in digital marketing combined with salesforce.com

How will this affect your focus on innovation?

We've set a bold vision for growth and innovation, and we believe that this gets us there faster. Our teams share a passion for developing and delivering client-inspired products and solutions, and together, we believe we can further accelerate our combined level of innovation. By bringing ExactTarget's industry-leading marketing automation and campaign management capabilities together with salesforce.com

It is an exciting time, and I am confident that this new chapter will provide our clients, partners and team members even greater resources and opportunity. Please know that we are committed to preserving the open, transparent and entrepreneurial Orange culture that has become a hallmark of ExactTarget. I will continue to provide updates throughout the process. The acquisition is still subject to shareholder approval and other customary closing conditions and is expected to close late in salesforce.com's second fiscal quarter, ending July 31, 2013.
