January 15, 2007

To LSI and Agere Employees,

January 4th marked a new beginning between LSI and Agere at our Integration Planning Kickoff meeting in Dallas, Texas. For a day and a half, executive leaders and key stakeholders from both business and functional units met to begin learning about each other's organizations and our collective processes. I was extremely pleased to see how well both companies quickly engaged with each other, which is a testament to our similar corporate cultures and is a leading indicator of a constructive collaboration going forward.

Edgar Filing: AGERE SYSTEMS INC - Form DEFA14A

As a result of the kickoff meeting, small teams from each company have been formed to manage the integration planning process. An Integration Steering Team consisting of myself, Rick Clemmer, Bryon Look, and Peter Kelly will govern the planning process, and team leaders from both LSI and Agere have been assigned for every business unit and function to ensure a balanced effort. Over the course of the next several months, these teams will focus on planning combined, highly effective organizations and for a seamless transition to becoming one company. As these teams meet critical milestones, I will provide updates on our progress. Until we can close the merger transaction, we will continue to operate as two separate companies focused on achieving our separate objectives.

This is an exciting time in the history of both companies. The proposed corporate organization structure and management appointments have been well-received by many of our customers, investors and analysts. Based on the rich heritage of both companies, we will have an incredible foundation that will allow us to change the industry landscape and reposition our combined company to become a Tier 1 player. Over the next few months, I look forward to conducting open forums and receiving your feedback as we chart a new course for the combined company. Until then, the most important thing everyone can do is to continue focusing on your customers, projects, and suppliers to deliver on the annual plan.
