On August 18, 2006, Lucent Technologies Inc. included the following information in LT Today, an internal electronic publication for employees:

1. I READ IN A NEWS ARTICLE THAT BASED ON AN ANALYSTS' REPORT LUCENT HAS A PENSION FUNDING GAP OF $5 BILLION AND THAT THIS MAY CAUSE SHAREHOLDERS OF ALCATEL TO VOTE "NO" AS THE MARKET VALUE OF LUCENT WOULD BE LESS?

First and foremost, let me point out that Lucent's pension plans remain well funded under the federally mandated ERISA rules. That means that there are more than enough dollars to provide for every liability expected under the pension plan using the rules the U.S. Congress has set out, and we are not required to make any contributions to our U.S. pension plan. Our plans, as measured by Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP), have about $34 billion in assets -- more than enough to cover the $31.3 billion in liabilities, as of September 30, 2005.

Second, the analyst report to which you refer alleges that if Lucent employed Alcatel's assumptions for calculating the assets and liabilities of its pension, then there would be a pension funding gap. It is irrelevant and inappropriate to apply Alcatel's pension assumptions to Lucent's pension plan, given the demographics of the plan participants and the duration of the obligations -- the length of time we typically provide pension benefits for participants -- of Lucent's plan differs from that of Alcatel's plan.

Lucent takes its obligations to retirees seriously and manages its pension assets prudently. It employs appropriate, even conservative, assumptions in determining the assets and liabilities of its pension plans.

We continue to make excellent progress towards the successful completion of the merger including clearing several major regulatory hurdles. We are on track and remain confident the deal will close by the end of the calendar year.

Both companies continue to receive positive support from customers for the pending merger and integration planning is well-advanced as evidenced by our recent personnel announcements.

We intend to hit the ground running when the merger is completed and continue to be confident about achieving the stated synergies over the time frames previously disclosed. (8-17-06)
